Dear Mr. Steven Wright, I don't see where you can claim that you are supplying the DSI customers with 577 watts of power for the next period when you are in fact throwing them to the wolves by having them buy that power from the PUD's or other suppliers at market rates. You then put them in an unacceptable position where they cannot secure a longer term contract. These industries cannot and will not operate competitively in this manner. The way I understand your draft, you are simply allowing the PUD's to profit on these sales to the DSI's. Why can't you simply maintain a direct whoesale agreement with the DSI's if in fact, you are supplying the power anyway? I don't understand. I also don't understand where all the power is going that the defunked dsi's were using before the 2000 crisis. And aren't we indeed putting more and more alternative energy on the grid? Please think sensibly and help save our industries. Sincerely,
Terry G. Fischer
