1. Purpose

Establish position authorization management policy in support of Bonneville Power Administration’s (BPA’s) commitment to managing federal positions within budgetary constraints while also balancing mission needs with economy and efficiency of operations.

2. Policy Owner

The Chief Workforce and Strategy Officer, through BPA Human Resources Service Center, has overall responsibility for monitoring, reporting, executing, and maintaining this BPA Human Resources (HR) Directive.

3. Applicability

Provisions of this document, except where noted, apply to the ability to track and report position status of all federal positions within BPA General Schedule (GS) or equivalent hourly.

4. Terms & Definitions

TERMS DESCRIBING THE TYPES OF POSITIONS

A. Authorized/Authorization: Permanent allocation. The number of positions an organization is permitted to maintain.

B. Authorized/Unfunded: Vacant permanent allocation that cannot be filled due to budgetary constraints.

C. Excess: Encumbered position that is neither authorized nor temporary authorized; typically resulting from initial allocation or major workforce restructuring efforts.

D. Temporary Authorized/ Temporary Authorization: Temporary allocation. Short-term solution to short-term seasonal, cyclical, surge or temporary work, or temporary overage due to succession planning or student hires and is limited by a predetermined period of time.

TERMS REGARDING HOW PEOPLE ARE CONNECTED TO THE POSITIONS

E. Assigned: Reporting to and working for an organization, regardless of duration of the assignment (includes permanent placements, temporary & term appointments, detailed or temporarily promoted employees).

F. Obligated to: Designation on a position that indicates it is the position of record for an employee, who may or may not be currently assigned to that position.

G. Vacancy: Unencumbered allocations. Authorized or temporary authorized positions with nobody assigned.
GENERAL TERMS

H. Position Management: The continuous and systematic process of ensuring that organizations and positions are structured efficiently and within approved resource levels.

I. Position Strength: Percentage describing the total number of personnel assigned vs. the total number of authorized positions for an organization.

J. Requirement: The baseline effort required to do the work of an organization without consideration for any constraints such as budget, work prioritization, etc.

5. Responsibilities

A. BPA Administrator: Executive oversight of overall BPA position authorization levels.

B. Tier I and II Leaders: Approve position authorization levels and movement within their respective organizations.

C. BPA Human Resources Service Center Director or designee: Manage position authorization process; advise executives and managers; conduct biennial requirements review and make recommendations; maintain position authorization records.

D. BPA Workforce Strategy Committee (in Executive Session): Monitor position strength and execution of labor dollars versus budget and authorization allocation.

E. BPA Managers and Supervisors: Monitor position management roster; follow position authorization management processes when taking position-related actions; proactively plan toward achievement of allocated staffing level.

6. Standards and Procedures

6.1 Initial Position Authorizations

A. Initial position authorizations are informed by the results of the completion and subsequent analysis of the 2019 comprehensive workforce studies.

B. The initial position authorizations at the Tier I level are approved by the BPA Administrator or designee.

C. Tier I leaders approve initial position authorizations for all their subordinate organizations.

6.2 Biennial Requirements Review

A. Every two calendar years, on odd numbered years, the Human Resources Service Center leads a requirements review with BPA organizations to assess changes that have occurred since the initial position authorization or last review cycle that may necessitate authorization adjustments. Factors reviewed include, but are not limited to, mission changes, changes in work methodology, and new information regarding work effort.

B. In collaboration with senior executives, the Human Resources Service Center makes authorization adjustment recommendations, no later than May 31st of the review year.

C. Positions authorization adjustments at the Tier I level and all their subordinate organization’s require Tier I level approval or designee.

D. Adjustments are effective in HRMIS October 1st of the review year, along with a transition plan facilitated by the Human Resources Service Center regarding how to administer personnel actions associated with the changes.

6.3 Position Authorization Changes

Position authorization changes include the following types of actions that occur during the interim period between biennial requirement reviews (note: a position change is independent of an associated personnel action, which is processed using Federal personnel processing guidelines):

1. Position move – the movement of a vacant, unobligated position’s number, from one organization to another
2. Position establishment – adding a new authorization or temporary authorization
3. Position elimination – removing an authorization, temporary authorization, or excess

A. Position authorization change requests and approvals are documented through HRMIS with a Position Authorization Change Request.

B. Position authorization change approval levels

1. Position authorization moves within a Tier II organization that require approval by the Tier II leader or designee.
   a) Example: Allocation move between PTK & PTM
2. Position authorization moves across Tier II organizations within the same Tier I organization require approval by the Tier I leader or designee.
   a) Example: Allocation move between TF & TE
3. Position authorization moves across Tier I require approval of both the gaining and losing Tier I leaders or his/her designee.
   a) Example: Allocation move between N & T
4. Position authorization changes that result in an increase in a Tier I authorization total (including permanent, temporary, and Contractor Full-Time Equivalent (CFTE) to Bonneville Full-Time Equivalency (BFTE) conversions) require approval of the Tier I leader or designee.

5. Requests to eliminate any vacant, unobligated authorized, temporary authorized, or excess position may be submitted via email request to the position management program manager or designee with appropriate Tier I or Tier II approval clearly annotated within the email correspondence.

6.4 Differences between “Authorized” and “Temporary Authorized”

A. Both “authorized” and “temporary authorized” are types of authorized positions, with the distinction being that “temporary authorized” positions are for either a set period of time or until specific event occurs. Typical uses of temporary authorized positions include surge workload, overlap as part of succession planning, student hiring, etc.

B. An employee of any appointment or assignment type (i.e., permanent, TERM, temporary, detailed) can be assigned against either type of authorized position; however, prior to assigning a permanent employee to a temporary authorized position, the manager, in consultation with the Human Resources Service Center, must have a plan of resolution as to the projected disposition of the permanent employee when the approval of the temporary authorization expires (e.g., projected retirements, end of surge work, etc.).

6.5 Assigned and Obligated

A. What is assigned? Employees who report to and work for an organization are “assigned” to that organization. All employees must be assigned against a position (all positions have a unique position number), whether that position is authorized, temporary authorized or excess.

B. What is “obligated to”? This term refers to an employee’s position of record. When an employee is assigned to their position of record, both the assigned and obligated is the same. However, if that employee is temporarily assigned to another position the employee’s position of record is still obligated to them, and the assigned and obligated positions are different.

EXAMPLE: When an employee is detailed from one position (e.g., Position A) to another position (e.g., Position B), then they are “assigned” to Position B (that is where they report to work) but their position of record is still Position A. Thus, Position A is “obligated to” that employee.

C. What is the impact of a position that is “obligated to” an employee. Managers may assign an employee to a position that is vacant, even if that position is obligated to another employee.
1. When assigning an employee on a temporary basis (e.g., detail, temporary promotion, temporary or TERM appointment, etc.) to an obligated position, then the temporary assignment will end when the “obligated to” employee returns.

2. An employee cannot be permanently assigned to an obligated position until the obligation rights of the obligated employee are permanently moved to another position.

6.6 Excess Positions

A. Position with an employee assigned for which there is no authorization (either permanent or temporary authorized) are designated as “excess”. New excess positions are created only in limited situations:

1. At the outset of establishing position authorization management with the initial authorizations;
2. As the result of significant workforce structuring activities (e.g., major reorganizations, reductions-in-force, organization eliminations, etc.);
3. Rare, specific management directed actions necessitated by legal or regulatory action (e.g., priority placements) when those placements cannot be made with a permanent or temporary authorization.

B. The “excess” designation on a position describes the position itself; it does not indicate that the particular employee assigned to it is excess.

C. When an organization with any positions designated as excess reduces its number of assigned employees (i.e., an employee departs), then the excess position is removed.

1. If the employee who departed was assigned to the excess position, the employee’s departure itself resolves the excess situation and no other action is needed.
2. If the employee who departed was assigned to an authorized or temporary authorized position, then their current position status is changed to excess or temporary authorized (i.e., exchange of position status), freeing the excess position for elimination

   a. Exceptions:

      i) 1. If the vacated position is an established supervisory position, the authorized or temporary authorization can be reused and filled without additional approval allowing the excess position to remain. The vacated position must also meet classification and position management standards.
ii) 2. If the vacated position is covered by a bargaining unit agreement requiring a minimum number of employees (i.e., Lineman crews), these positions may be backfilled regardless of existing excess positions within the organization.

iii) 3. If an employee occupying an excess position is temporarily assigned to another position, the excess position may be temporarily backfilled.

6.7 System of Record

A. The Human Resources Service Center maintains positions in HRMIS and each position will have a unique position number.

B. The Human Resources Service Center provides a Position Management Roster for each organization via HRMIS, displaying their positions (authorized, temporary authorized and excess) and assigned employees.

C. The Human Resources Service Center maintains an Authorization Summary Report that depicts the number of authorized and temporary authorized positions for each organization.
