Dear Customer/Stakeholder,

The Post-2011 Review officially commenced on November 22, 2013 at a public meeting in Portland, Oregon. BPA sought comment on the proposed scope and process for the Review. Thank you for your comments during the meeting and the subsequent public comment period, which was held from December 6 to December 21. Submitted comments can be read here.

The scoping document for the public process, which has been updated to reflect customer and stakeholder input, can be found here. A redline copy can be found here.

BPA requests that interested customers and stakeholders participate in the first meeting of Workgroup 1 (Model for Achieving Programmatic Savings) on January 16 in Portland, Oregon or by telephone. More information on that meeting can be found here. Add the meeting to your calendar.

Workgroups 2, 3 and 4 will commence in February. Workgroup 5 will commence in March. A full schedule proposal will be distributed soon. Everyone on this distribution list will be invited to the first meeting of each workgroup. After that, you will not be invited to meetings of that workgroup unless you have requested to be a participant.

If you would like to sign up for a workgroup, please contact your EER or if you are not a customer, please contact Matt Tidwell.

Background

The Post-2011 Energy Efficiency Review (Post-2011 Review) is a public process to review and consider improvements to the BPA energy efficiency policy framework and associated implementation elements put in place on October 1, 2011.

Prior to 2011, BPA's Energy Efficiency's group conducted a public process to engage customers and other regional stakeholders about the role they think BPA should play in developing, incentivizing and monitoring energy efficiency programs after 2011. The goal for that public process was to gain feedback and support from the region on the structure of energy efficiency programs that BPA was planning to offer post-2011. Prior to the 2011 fiscal year beginning, BPA adopted a Post-2011 energy efficiency program strategy and policy for the agency through a public process. During the process, BPA and stakeholders agreed to review and consider improvements to the BPA energy efficiency policy framework after sufficient experience (one rate period) had been gained.
