Dear Libby

Kindly allow me to approach you with the following question:

I understand that BPA has a software package that is available in the public domain. The software is called "Corona and Field Effects Programme (CAEFP)" – do you perhaps know if this software can be downloaded from the internet and used by third parties like myself?

If so, can you please share with me the URL of the download site.

I thank you in advance for your kind assistance

Yours sincerely

Pieter Pretorius

Dear Libby

I can only thank you for your kind and prompt reply – also for so kindly sharing with me information about other documents from BPA which I will gladly have a look at.

I will cite the document as you requested below.

Thank you again for your kind assistance

Yours sincerely

Pieter Pretorius

Dear Dr. Pretorius,

Thank you for your recent inquiry regarding the use of a citation of a BPA document for your upcoming book on . I have added author and DOE/BPA number to the citation. Please cite as below:

Lee, Jack M., Electrical and Biological Effects of Transmission Lines – A Review, 1989, US Department of Energy (DOE) and Bonneville Power Administration (BPA), DOE/BPA--945

You are welcome to use anything from this document or just include it as a bibliographical reference. No other permissions are necessary. It is a government document and not copyrighted or restricted. We appreciate your using the correct citation. We would also like to arrange to receive a copy of your article if it is published, if you would keep us in mind.

For your information, there are later revisions, also by Mr. Lee, listed in the BPA Library Catalog. The latest one is from 1996 and is available on a public website here. I'm not sure which document is more suitable for your purposes but the later one might be more timely.

Have you have searched extensively in our collection? There may be other resources in our library catalog that will serve your project; you are welcome to search here selecting the Library Catalog from the pull-down menu on the top left. If you find any other documents you would like to receive, as long as the call number starts with BPA or BOX, please let us know. All our BPA documents have now been digitized, and it is possible for us to get them to you in electronic form. We don't have the rights to anything in our MAIN collection (that would have to come from the individual publishers), but if it is BPA or starts with BOX and then shows a BPA call number, these are available to use without restriction as they are our own publications.

Please let me know if you have any further questions.

Thank you very much,

Libby
